71.01 TITLE.

This Ordinance shall be entitled the “Sex Offender Residency Ordinance.”

71.02 RECITALS.

The Wisconsin Statutes, including Chapters 940, 944, and 948 thereof, govern the punishment of individuals who commit sex crimes. The Wisconsin Statutes also govern the release into the community of such individuals. The city is responsible to maintain the public health, safety, and welfare and finds that sex offenders have high recidivism rates that threaten the public health, safety, and welfare, especially that of children.

The city counsel has reviewed findings in several studies related to recidivism and risk related to individuals who have committed sex crimes. Those studies include the following:

- Center for Sex Offender Management Fact Sheet: What You Need to Know About Sex Offenders. This fact sheet provided information about sex offender recidivism, including that it is estimated that one in every five girls and one in every seven boys are sexually abused by the time they reach adulthood; that one in six adult women and one in 33 adult men experience an attempted or completed sexual assault; that approximately 67 percent of all victims of reported sexual assaults are under age 18 and more than half are under age 12; and that about 12 to 24 percent of sex offenders will re-offend.

- U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Statistics—Recidivism of Sex Offenders Released from Prison in 1994. This study found that compared to non-sex offenders released from state prisons, released sex offenders were four times more likely to be re-arrested for a sex crime.
- Correctional Service Canada—Forum on Corrections Research. This study of 178 sex offenders released from a maximum-security psychiatric facility found that after an average follow-up of 59 months, 27.5 percent of sex offenders in the study sexually recidivated and 40.4 percent of the sex offenders were arrested, convicted, or returned to a psychiatric facility for a violent offence.
- California Research Bureau—The Impact of Residency Restrictions on Sex Offenders and Correctional Management: A Literature Review. This study found that at the time it was written 22 states had enacted some form of residency restriction that prohibits sex offenders from living within a certain distance of schools, daycare centers, or places where children congregate. The least restrictive among them was 500 feet, but distances from 1,000 to 2,500 feet were common.
- National Bureau of Economic Research—There Goes the Neighborhood? Estimates of the Impact of Crime Risk on Property Values from Megan's Laws. This study found that the majority of both violent and non-violent offenses take place less than one mile from victims' homes. It also found that prices of homes near sex offenders declined considerably following an offender's arrival in the neighborhood.
- An Evaluation of Sex Offender Residency Restrictions in Michigan and Missouri. This study found that while in Michigan, residency restrictions led to a slight increase in recidivism, in Missouri, the reconviction rate declined.

Based on the above studies and other information presented to the city counsel, the counsel determines that the restrictions set forth in this section serve the purpose of protecting the public health, safety, and welfare from the risk of recidivism of sex offenders. The counsel further determines that the intent and effect of this article is not to banish sex offenders from residing within the city, and careful attention has been given to ensure that there are ample locations for sex offenders to reside within the city in compliance with the requirements of this article.

The counsel further determines that the opportunity for individualized consideration of the risks and benefits of residency restrictions on a case-by-case basis is the best approach to achieve the purposes of this article and, to that end, this article establishes an "exemption" process by which a sex offender may seek an exemption from its residency restrictions by petitioning to the City's Sex Offender Residence Counsel.

The purpose of this article is to protect the public health, safety, and welfare in the city by regulating the residency of sex offenders.
